"Nancy Marshall is the consummate PR expert. Her notoriety in the field is what prompted us to retain her services to present a series of 20 live webinars to business owners across the state for the purpose of helping them understand the power of PR and the role of the internet and social media, in general, in starting and growing a business. Her wisdom, wit and charm captivated the audience. Nancy rightly won the Edward L. Bernays PR Award from the Maine Public Relations Council recognizing the top PR professional in the state; yet further demonstration of her expertise."

"Serving in a state agency does not always provide the immediate resources to support strategic communications, so when we needed some help being proactive and responsive to a changing landscape, we connected with Marshall Communications for help. Marshall was a referral to us from a trusted colleague with a lot of experience, so we knew the firm had credibility. It became immediately obvious in our first meeting with the firm that we needed to develop an agreement to retain the team. The expertise, responsiveness and productivity of Nancy and her experienced team allowed us to handle complex public relations issues that we would not have been able to manage on our own.

Nancy served our team through several issues. From a staffing change to a sensitive issue that impacted a lot of stakeholders, Marshall Communications was there to support our work, position our organization for success, arm us with focused talking points and connect us with the right people in the field to ensure that we could effectively handle communications that supported our work and advanced our mission. I would highly recommend Marshall Communications for a range of communications services, and greatly appreciate the team's efforts to help us."
